

Conference European Foreign Policy ASSESSING EU'S ROLE IN THE WORLD

Maurizio Carbone, Lecturer, University of Glasgow: The European Union in Africa: from partnership to paternalism?

Biography

Maurizio Carbone is a lecturer in the Department of Politics at the University of Glasgow, where he also directs the Scottish Jean Monnet Centre of European Excellence. He has published on the external relations of the European Union (particularly development policy), foreign aid and the politics of international development. His latest book is The European Union and International Development: The Politics of Foreign Aid (Routledge, 2007). More recently, he has edited a special issue of Perspectives on European Politics and Society on 'The New Season of EU Development Policy' (2/2008) and a special issue of Journal of European Integration (3/2008) on 'Policy coherence and EU development policy'.